Not Guilty on Second Charge.

The second charge was not sustained. The vote against Judge Archbald, 46 to 23, being two short of the necessary two-thirds.

On the third charge, involving the use of influence with the Lehigh Valley Railroad to force it to relinquish a lease on "packer No. 1," a property which Judge Archbald wanted to get, the accused jurist was convicted by a vote of 46 to 23. Senators Brandegee, Clark, of Wyoming; Crane, Smoot, Stephenson and Thornton, who had voted "not guilty" on the first article, voted "guilty" on this charge.

Another verdict of "guilty" came on the fourth charge, that Judge Archbald had wrongfully written to Helm Bruce, an attorney, in preparing a decision in a case then before the Commerce Court. The vote on this charge was 46 to 23. Additional Senators who voted "not guilty" on this charge were: Burton, Cullom, DuPont, Gay, of Wyoming; Oliver, Paynter and Penrose. The vote on this charge was 46 to 23. Additional Senators who voted "not guilty" on this charge were: Burton, Cullom, DuPont, Gay, of Wyoming; Oliver, Paynter and Penrose.

On the fifth charge, that he had corruptly influenced the President to grant a coal land lease to Frederick Warnke and had received compensation for this service, Judge Archbald received the support of but six Senators—Burnham, Catron, Clark, of Wyoming; Oliver, Paynter and Penrose. He was convicted, 46 to 6, on this article.

On the last article of impeachment alleging that Judge Archbald had bought credit from attorneys and politicians before him and had carried on a general business in coal land speculation, many Senators asked to be excused from voting, declaring the charges were so general they could not conscientiously vote either way. The final vote resulted in conviction on this article also, 46 to 20.

Wins on Seven Charges.

Judge Archbald received majorities in his favor on seven of the charges against him, besides the acquittal on the second article, where the two-thirds vote against him was not obtained.

On the charge that he had wrongfully accepted a bribe of $500, raised among Scranton attorneys, the vote was 46 "not guilty" and one "guilty," the single vote being cast by Senator Ashurst, of Arizona.

Although no debate was permitted during the progress of the voting, many Senators asked to be excused from voting on certain charges because they did not believe the charges were true, or that they were committed by Judge Archbald before he was appointed to the Commerce Court, or because they believed the acts that might be characterized as "misbehavior" were not such as to constitute "high crimes and misdemeanors" involving the extreme penalty of the Constitution.

Senator Root, in a statement filed during the voting, in which Senator Lodge vociferously concurred, said: "I have voted that the respondent is guilty under articles 1, 2, 3, 5, 6 and 13, because I find that he used the power and influence of his office as Judge of the Court of Commerce to secure favors of money value to himself and his family from railroad companies, some of which were litigants in his court, and all of which were under the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, subject to the review of the Court of Commerce."

"I consider this course of conduct, and each instance of it, to be a high crime and misdemeanor. I have voted not guilty upon the other articles, because, while most of them involved improper conduct, I do not consider that the acts proved are high crimes and misdemeanors."

The legal fight before the Senate was in the hands of seven members of the House of Representatives, as the prosecutors, and Judge Archbald's attorneys, who had the personal advice of Judge Archbald throughout the trial.

Silent Witnesses of Climax.

The House managers and attorneys sat throughout the proceedings to-day, silent witnesses to the decision of the case. Those who conducted the prosecution were Representatives Clayton, of Arkansas; Steiwer, of Illinois; Florida; Arkansas; Webb, of North Carolina; Davis, of West Virginia; Norris, of Nebraska; and Howland, of Ohio, assisted by Whitley Brown, of the Department of Justice, who conducted the defense.

At the conclusion of the case to-day Representative Clayton gave out the following statement:

"This is the third successful impeachment in the history of the United States. In the other cases, Judge Pickens, who was insane, did not appear at all and Judge Humphreys had cast his lot with the Confederacy and was not the Confederate time."

To-day's result proves the efficiency of the process provided by the Constitution for the removal of unfaithful officers, and gives life and vitality to the oldest method of impeachment, thus establishing beyond successful future dispute that the scope of impeachment is not limited to criminal acts merely, but that the clause fixing

They Bought Seats Between the Acts.

Even the full column devoted to yesterday's review of the modern morality play which lay due homage to a production of such a play is all too rarely seen anywhere, and in Richmond still more rarely, if at all.

To one who managed to see the latter part of this wonderful modern morality play again last night, its poetic lines rang or murmured with new beauties of diction and of meaning, while the splendors of its setting, its costuming and its brilliant mounting burst upon him with renewed radiance.

The cast, too, refreshed by Sunday's brief rest, read delicate intonations into the written parts that would have reached and brightened the heart of Walter Browne, who wrote them, lived to see them appreciated by a wise and artistic producer, and then died upon the very eve of their public interpretation. Surely a sad end to befall a man who sought the laurel crown of fame through favor of the wisest of the Nations, and yet had the good sense to seek out the creation of his brain with the words:

"It is not a sermon in disguise, neither is it a quixotic effort to elevate the stage. At the same time, it is hoped that the play may be found to contain some good, best sign of all—between the acts they were slipping out to the box office and buying other seats."

For it is the sort of play that discovers with every performance something new to see and hear.

The engagement continues with afternoon and evening performances to-day.

Look Who's at the Bijou:

Ward & Vokes, that's all. And that's more than enough. They have turned their barrel upside down this season and are presenting "A Run on the Bank." A Run for Your Money, which probably is equally appropriate. Good old Hap Ward, his friend wife, Lucy Daily, and his team-mate, Vokes, do not need any reviewing, but they'll get it tomorrow anyhow, and this reviewer does not feel called upon to explain why he did not get somebody else to do it for him last night.

NO ALLEN DECISION

Supreme Court Has Not Taken Action on Petition.

Nothing came from the Supreme Court of Appeals yesterday as to the petition of the city of Richmond, filed by Floyd and Claude Allen, asking for an order permitting the Circuit Court of Wythe County to consider an application and argument for a new trial.

A decision on the petitions may come at any moment, and may be rendered this morning. Thursday of this week is the first regular opinion day of the term, but that is only one explanation of the delay.

GREATER PARCEL POST

Acting Postmaster Southwest Prescribes Absorption of Third Class.

According to Acting Postmaster W. R. Southward, who addressed the students and teachers of John Marshall High School yesterday morning, the parcel post will ultimately be extended to include all third-class matter. The Postmaster-General's order last week, placing third-class articles in the parcel post, was a great step in this direction, he thought, bore out this prediction.

Southward spoke in the high school chapel at 8 o'clock in the morning. He was presented by Principal C. H. Woodard, who provided for the occasion a projectoscope apparatus by means of which a parcel post map printed in large, simplified proportions on a large screen Mr. Southward used the map screen, explaining the zone system and the schedule of rates.

NONE BUT PROGRESSIVES BE SELECTED TO AID WILSON

away from a particular task and extend their eyes to the fortunes of men lying outside their usual ken, beyond their touch—the great bodies of men who would go along with them, hope and struggle and achieve.

"You cannot whip a nation into line. You cannot drive their leaders before you. You have got to have a spirit that thrills the whole body, and I believe that the whole body is now beginning to thrill the whole body."

"A man can accomplish a great deal more in business, as I need hardly tell you, by the belief that people have in him than by the field that he inspires. And some men have made the profound mistake, so far as their individual success is concerned, of trying to succeed by fear and not by persuasion, not by confidence, but by creating the consciousness that they can spoil the careers of the men who do not work."

"I suppose some people have the idea that I love to fight just for the fun of it. That is true in the least my temperament. I am really a very tame, amenable person; but I do love to feel in my blood the splendid sensation of fighting for something, something that is bigger than myself and trying for the time, at least, to think I am as big as the thing I am fighting for."

"That is solid satisfaction. And when I can for the time being represent the Democratic party and find that the nation as a whole is thawing out toward the Democratic party and more and more coming to believe that the Democratic party can do the thing which the country has been waiting for, then I enjoy the immense satisfaction of being part of a thing that is so much bigger than I am that I can dream, at any rate, that I am taking my own measure by the thing I belong to."

Telegrams came from Democratic committeemen throughout the Union congratulating the Governor on the balloting to-day. New Jersey's ballot will be carried to Washington by Fitzwilliam McManister Woodrow, a cousin of the President-elect, and a student of Princeton University.

To-morrow the New Jersey Legislature will convene and receive Governor Wilson's final message.

WORTHLESS CHECKS PASSED ON BANKS

Man Operating Under Three Different Names Arrested in Norfolk.

HAS $8,000 ON HIS PERSON

Books From Twenty-Five Banks, Showing Accounts in Each, Also Found.

Norfolk, Va., January 13.—On charges of defrauding by check practically every bank in Norfolk, Portsmouth and Newport News, William M. Henson, thirty-five years old, of New York, was arrested here this afternoon.

Bankbooks from various cities and towns in Pennsylvania, Delaware and West Virginia, showing dealings with the various institutions, were found on him when searched at police headquarters.

Money to the amount of $8,310 was also found in his possession, $3,570 being found in his overcoat pocket, $4,740 in his trunk, and $100 in his pocket.

A warrant was sworn out by R. C. Taylor, Jr., of the Marine Bank, charging Henson with unlawfully defrauding by check through the Norfolk National Bank on a bank in Pennsylvania, said check being worthless, and drawn and cashed with intent to defraud.

Representatives from other banks in the city called at police headquarters to-night and looked over the prisoner, and in all likelihood a number of charges will be placed against Henson when he is brought to police court for a preliminary hearing.

Henson operated under three different names. In Norfolk he was William M. Henson, in Portsmouth he was known as H. H. Conwell, while in Berkeley he had accounts under the name of Harry Brosey and M. A. Hees.

The first inkling of the workings of Henson was had at police headquarters to-day when several banks complained that H. W. Henson had defrauded them by passing worthless checks. Henson denied all intention to defraud when brought before the rail at police headquarters.

The $5,750 was taken off him at police headquarters in $100, $20, $10, and $5 bills and was tucked in his overcoat pockets, the lapel of the pocket being pinned to the coat with safety pins.

In his pockets were bankbooks from

SEEK BALTIMOREAN.

Visitor to Richmond Missing from Boat Since Last Wednesday.

At the request of M. R. McGeehan, of Baltimore, the police here yesterday began a search for William E. Woodard, thirty-six years old, also of Baltimore. A "red herring" was being used to lead all members of the local department, while a description of the missing man was sent to nearby cities.

McGeehan is Woodard's secretary. He told the police that Woodard came to Norfolk, Va., on the week of January 10, and had been missing since last Wednesday. No reason is known why he should voluntarily disappear.

Woodard is a member of the Hamill & Woodard, mineral water dealers, of Baltimore.

DEATH IN SHALLOW POND.

Unfortunate Sufferer Lies Face Downward and Slowly Drowns.

Salem, N. J., January 13.—Miss Caroline E. Hatcher, 16 years old, of Philadelphia, committed suicide by jumping into an ice pond on the premises of her sister, Mrs. M. J. Hatcher, near Pennville, N. J.

Miss Hatcher was employed in Philadelphia as a seamstress, but for several weeks had been in a hospital for treatment for nervousness. She came to the home of her sister thinking the country life would be beneficial to her, and when she did not return within a reasonable time, her mother made a search and found her face down in the pond about 10 o'clock yesterday.

Her mother found a certificate of burial at once. Besides Mrs. Turner, another sister, Mrs. Dr. H. H. Sumner, of Pennsylvania, survives her.

CUB'S ESCAPE BRINGS REUNION

Atlantic City, January 13.—Because the article of a bear cub, got into print along with the name of his keeper, there is to be a big family reunion at Springdale, W. Va., next month.

It was presented to Hill & Farrell, Atlantic Avenue merchants early in November by a student at the University of Maine, where he had been the football mascot. Lewis A. Miller, head salesman, took charge of the little bear and got into the habit of taking him out for daily promenades on the boardwalk. One day "Jeff" got loose, and the cub was taken to the police station.

The story was sent out and widely copied. During the President-elect's visit to Staunton, Va., a Springfield paper printed it. Effey Gilkerson, wife of a rancher there, read the article, she suspected the Miller mentioned was her brother. She communicated with him anonymously at first, but he recognized her handwriting and wrote her.

Thus "Jeff" escapee united them, for Miller had lost all track of his family since he was honorably discharged from the army seven years ago. Two other sisters and three brothers had lived on the family homestead in Texas before he enlisted, but when he returned they were gone. Since then he had searched for them to no avail. Through the sister he has got into communication with the rest of his family, and plans are now under way for a big reunion on the Gilkerson ranch next month, when "Jeff" will be the central figure.

MANGLED BODY FOUND ON TRACK

Investigation Will Be Made Into Death of Carey Pyle.

Bristol, Va., January 13.—The mangled body of Carey Pyle, a twenty-two year old, a former Bristolian, a son of the late Engineer Richard Pyle, of the Norfolk and Western Railway, was found on the Norfolk and Western track near Meadowview late to-night. He had evidently fallen or pushed from the high passenger train James Albert, another young man, was found apparently almost lifeless in the baggage car, and was taken to the hospital, where he received medical attention and soon revived. He said that he and Pyle boarded the train at Pulaski, and had been on the train for some time, and had been nothing of Pyle's fate. He is being held pending developments.

SPELLS IT "WILLIARD"

Artist of Church Hill Bank Sign Adds

Church Hill people will hereafter know Captain Joseph E. Willard, the distinguished former Lieutenant Governor and former member of the State Corporation Commission, as "Willard." For it is so stated officially on a sign which the artist has added to the sign on the building at Twenty-fifth and Broad Streets, setting forth the name of the building as "Willard Building."

Further down, in the list of directors, his name appears again, still spelled in the same manner—with a superfluous "l."

CHANGE MADE IN DIRECTORS

New York, January 13.—Changes announced to-day in the directorate of the Southern Pacific Company are believed to be the direct outcome of last week's conference at Washington, where Attorney General Wickersham and representatives of the Harriman interests and of the Southern Pacific protective committee.

It is understood that the Attorney General then informed R. S. Lovett, chairman of the board of directors of the Southern Pacific, and Frank A. Vanderlip and M. L. Schiff, members of the board, that he would not consent to the plan of the directors to no longer have a director from the Southern Pacific board decision until the Union Pacific.

Directors and officers of the Union Pacific who also were members of the Southern Pacific board then resigned to-day. Inversely, directors of the Southern Pacific also connected with the Union Pacific resigned.

Julius Kruttschnitt resigned as director of maintenance and operation of the Union Pacific and was elected chairman of the board of the Southern Pacific, succeeding R. S. Lovett, resigned.

In their stead the following were chosen: James N. Wallace, Horace Harding, W. B. Bliss, C. N. Pease, H. Leighton, A. N. Service, C. H. Kelsey and R. P. Swenson.

The hearing to-morrow will be on the metal tariff.
